

Some are BIG...
others are small.

Some are progressive...
others are conservative.

Some are preppy...
others are bohemian.

Some are in LARGE cities...
others are in college towns.

But all of them are...

Grounded in Faith

— and —

Driven by Discovery

One of them might be just right for you.

For more information visit:
presbyteriancolleges.org

Agnes Scott College	Macalester College
Alma College	Mary Baldwin College
Arcadia University	Maryville College
Austin College	Missouri Valley College
Belhaven University	Monmouth College
Blackburn College	Muskingum University
Bloomfield College	Presbyterian College
Buena Vista University	Queens University of Charlotte
Carroll University	Rhodes College
Centre College	Rocky Mountain College
Coe College	Schreiner University
College of Idaho	St. Andrews University
College of the Ozarks	Stillman College
College of Wooster	Trinity University
Davidson College	Tusculum College
Davis & Elkins College	University of Dubuque
Eckerd College	University of Jamestown
Hampden-Sydney College	University of Pikeville
Hannam University, Korea	University of the Ozarks
Hanover College	University of Tulsa
Hastings College	Warren Wilson College
Illinois College	Waynesburg University
Interamericana University	Westminster College (MO)
of Puerto Rico	Westminster College (PA)
Johnson C. Smith University	Westminster College (UT)
King University	Whitworth University
Lees-McRae College	William Peace University
Lyon College	Wilson College

ASSOCIATION OF PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Presbyterian Colleges & Universities

More than fifty variations on one timeless theme...

The Presbyterian emphasis on higher education can be traced back to the early 1700's and the founding of the College of New Jersey, (now Princeton University). From there, Presbyterian missionaries and pastors spread out across the emerging nation founding dozens of colleges from coast to coast.

Today, those colleges offer a broad range of academic, social, geographic and spiritual experiences to the students they serve.

Dr. John Kuykendall, president emeritus of Davidson College, notes that this diversity reflects the "genius" of the Presbyterian approach to education because each institution is "free to seek its own way" and discover distinct ways to associate faith and learning.

Faith isn't a "one size fits all" concept, and neither is education. That's why Presbyterian colleges and universities offer more than 50 ways to approach academic excellence, spiritual growth, and personal development.

Find your fit

Our schools are as diverse and far-reaching as the students they serve. There's the distinctive sign language major at Maryville College and a nationally-ranked sailing team at Eckerd College. You'll find the groundbreaking Summit curriculum at Agnes Scott College and the first Therapeutic Horsemanship degree in the nation at St. Andrews University.

At Missouri Valley College, you can meet the women's Collegiate National Champion Rodeo Team and at Rhodes College, you can walk across the most beautiful campus in America (according to The Princeton Review).

We are schools, not churches—so learning comes first. But our Presbyterian heritage helps us honor the dignity and worth of every person we serve. Our graduates are not only well-prepared academically, they're ready to be spiritually and socially engaged citizens of our complex world.

Fulfill your destiny

Our schools are a diverse group—but they're bound by a shared commitment to learning, faith, service, and connectivity. Therefore, they strive to educate whole people for the whole world—people who excel in their studies and careers, and want to use their talents to make a difference in the world.

If you're interested in a college experience that's grounded in faith and driven by discovery, take a closer look at our Presbyterian colleges. One of them might be just right for you...

Fund your future

Presbyterian students can qualify for scholarships through the Presbyterian Church U.S.A.—awards that many of our schools will match with their own dollars! A number of these schools—including Austin College, the College of Wooster, Presbyterian College, and Westminster College (PA)—also offer their own Presbyterian scholarships and grants to qualified students (in addition to many other student aid resources).